

POOL REPRESENTATIVE ANSWERS EVANS STATEMENT

Of course, the elevator burned down on main street and has been commenced and it will probably not be so bleak looking in a short time.

do considerable harm, as although the money has already been paid up on the subject for the good of the market. We cannot, however, leave ourselves in the hands of Mr. W. Stanforth Evans, M. L. A., before the Winnipeg Board of Trade on Thursday. Mr. Evans made it quite clear, partially by direct reference but largely by implication that, in his opinion the present ill of the world which trade were due to the policies and operating methods of the Canadian Wheel Pool.

"As was to be expected, very wide publicity has been given to Mr. Evans' address in Europe, the United States and Australia. His contention that North America has taken an awful licking and is in a state of blue-ribbon and extremely pessimistic opinions have naturally been given to the limit. The result has, of course, been more uncertainty and confusion just at the time when the market is slowly recovering from its most depressing influence—the complete loss of confidence in the market. Mr. Evans' presentation of nothing but the black bear side of the picture has done nothing but to increase the justification for giving a totally different picture of the actual situation."

SPORT NOTES

AS TOLD ABOUT JACK

It is supposed that there is a plan under way whereby Jack, the son of the late John, will try the comeback performance and that he will be sent against some other "rival" of the late John's. It is said that if this is so, Dempsey will be "saved" for just such an emergency, but if Dempsey is half as good as he is used to be, Dempsey will have cause to regret the "having" part of it. Dempsey can knock out any man he can hit, and it is supposed that he could hit the late John being Italian. As a promoter from pay had a poor run of luck, but in this connection he has faced no worse than Madison Square Garden and the Chicago Stadium Corporation. In fact even before the death of Ter Richard a reaction had set in, the men who pay not being over-eager to view those alleged battles of the palms and the trunks. Dempsey was the greatest crowd-puller of modern times, and his defeat at the hands of the elusive and clever Gene Tunney hurt the sport as an attraction. It is said that the crop of heavyweights is a poor one, but if Dempsey was in his prime, and could take on Sharkey, Schmorl, and other alleged contenders, the promoters would make a lot of money. Dempsey probably realizes that his return would stir up a lot of interest, but it would be a risk to take. If the old man could come back and feel a victim to those he could have knocked out, he would be a great attraction. Better by far to have him remain in retirement than to sacrifice him and his reputation on a flimsy and hopeless errand. Twenty years ago they brought Jim Jeffries out of retirement to oppose Jack Johnson, the great colored heavyweight. Those who saw that debacle at Reno will never forget it. Jeffries, a shadow of the man he used to be, never had a chance as he took a beating "gamely" for fifteen rounds before the fight was over. Those who have placed Dempsey on the highest pedestal of all

FUTURE PROSPECTS FOR PRO HOCKEY PLAYERS

An example of the future prospects for professional hockey players might be taken from the annual report of the National Hockey League. Many of the professionals today expect to play just so long, but this season, they are being urged to sign to play with Hollywood in the California Hockey League, was playing semi-professional hockey with the Montreal Wanderers in the Eastern Canada Hockey League last in 1924. He was a member of the Wanderers until 1912, when he joined the New Westminster Club in the Pacific Coast League. He spent three years with that team, four with Portland and five with Victoria, all in the same league. He did not play in 1922-23, but the next two years he played with Los Angeles and the following year with Minneapolis in the American Hockey Association. He was out of hockey in 1927-28, but last year he returned to play with Portland in the Pacific Coast Hockey League, and now he is back in California. While with Montreal Wanderers the team won the Stanley Cup four times. With more money to be made and more time to play in, players like Johnson have considerable of a future ahead of them in professional hockey.

Would not wish to see the Jeffries episode repeated.

HEARD ON THE STREET

Aunt Het says:—Jane claims she's only twenty-six, but a woman has to be older than that to be a widow with children comes courtin'.

Wife (travelling):—Do you know George, you looked awfully tall when you proposed to me?

George:—Well, very likely I was.

Jack:—You should have seen the right I got on my wedding day.

Bill:—Flash, that's no way to talk about your wife.

Youthful Questioner:—What are digests, excursions, father?

Father:—There are no such people, my boy.

On returning home the Aberdeen youth, who was spent the evening with his sweetheart, was met by his mother.

Mother:—Well, how much did you spend tonight?

Son:—Oh, about eighteen pence.

Mother:—That's not so bad.

Son:—Well, you see, it was all she.

A PACK OF CARDS

Serves as Bible, Almanac and Common Prayer Book

Here is a story which has been told and retold for many years in Canada where two or three have been named together. We had a copy passed on to us with the request that we publish for the benefit of those who enjoy such stories. Naturally the story is supposed to be true but we offer no guarantee.

A private soldier by the name of Richard Lee was taken many years ago before a Magistrate of this city for playing cards during driving service, and the account of it is given as follows:

A sergeant commanded the soldiers at church, and while there the parson read the prayers and took the text. Those who had a little took it out, but this soldier had neither Bible nor Common Prayer Book, but pulling out a pack of cards, he spread them before him. He first looked at one card and then at another. The parson of the company saw him, and said, Richard put the cards away; this is no place for them. "Never mind that," said Richard.

When the services were over the command officer took a private soldier, and brought him before the Magistrate. "Well," said the Magistrate, "what have you brought this soldier here for?" "For playing cards in church," "Well, said he, what have you to say for your self?" "Much, sir, I hope." "Very good! If not, I will punish you severely."

"I have been," said the soldier, "about six weeks on the march. I have carried this Bible and Common Prayer Book. I have nothing but a pack of cards, and hope to satisfy your Worship."

Then spreading the cards before him, he began to read.

"When I see the ace it reminds me there is but one God. When I see the three, it reminds me of Father, Son and Holy Ghost. When I see the four, it reminds me of the four evangelists that preached—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. When I see the five, it reminds me of the five virgins that trimmed their lamps. There were two, but five were wise and five were foolish and were shut out. When I see the six, it reminds me that in six days the Lord made heaven and earth. When I see the seven, it reminds me that on the seventh day God rested from the great work which he had made, and hallowed it. When I see the eight, it reminds me of the eight righteous persons who were saved when God destroyed the world. I see Noah and his wife, his nine sons and their wives. When I see the nine, it reminds me of the nine hours that were taken by our Saviour. There were nine out of ten who never returned thanks. When I see the ten, it reminds me of the ten commandments which God handed down to Moses on the tables of stone. When I see the King of Heaven, which is God Almighty, I see the Queen of Heaven, which is the Queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon for she was a wise woman and she was a man. She brought fifty boys and fifty girls all dressed in hock appeared for King Solomon. There were fifty girls and fifty boys. The King sent for water for them to wash and they washed to the elbows and the boys to the wrists; no King Solomon died by that."

"The Knave," said the Magistrate, "I will give you a hundred a description of that too if you will not be angry." "I will not," said the soldier. "I do not know the Knave." "The greatest brought me here," I do not know the Knave. "I am the great Knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."

"When I count how many spots there are in a pack of cards I find 365, as many days as there are in a year. When I count the number of cards in a pack I find 52, the number of weeks in a year. I find there are 12 pictures in a pack representing the number of months in a year. When I count the number of trumps I find 13, the number of weeks in a quarter. So you see a pack of cards serves for a Bible, an Almanac, and Common Prayer Book."

Shall I tell you more just just speaking to you as girls in short skirts and moon shoes wear them. He-heaven, forbid that you should do that."

The definition of 'rid economy' is said to be a dead Scotchman.

tax equalization throughout the province, expressed by the Chamberlain of Bow Valley Municipality in his annual report published in The Standard.

That school taxation is unfair, unequal, unjust and altogether out of step with modern progress and without saying, in Shepard Municipality the mill rate of taxation is twenty-one cents per dollar, while in the Bow Valley Municipality it is twenty cents per dollar, while in the Bow Valley Municipality it is twenty cents per dollar, while in the Bow Valley Municipality it is twenty cents per dollar.

It therefore seems to me that the taxation area for public education should be province-wide. Adding half insurance areas, half school districts, half townships, and half the province is vitally interested in the welfare of all parts of its territory, and since the province draws its revenue from all portions of its territory, it is only fair that it should contribute to the cost of half insurance bond should rest upon the entire province.

I would like to see Bow Valley Municipality line up solidly and send a strong delegation to Edmonton to urge the radical reform in half, and at the same time, school taxation methods.

FIGHTING THE SOW THISTLE IN MANITOBA

The Sow Thistle menace is so rampant in the mind of every good farmer and the following article in the Country Guide by John Clive is worthy of the attention and consideration of every land owner or tenant in the province of Alberta. The article will be continued in next week's issue.

It's only a few years ago since the majority of farmers in western Canada were interested in now thistles in only a remote sort of way. It was "No skin off their own knuckles." Today it's probably true that there isn't a wheat grower in the three prairie provinces who, if he hasn't some of this weed on his own place, lives with it in contemptuous disregard. The country has been plastered with warnings about the seriousness of this weed pest, yet the farmer has steadily went. As it's human nature not to worry about weeds till they have rank their tentacles firmly over the soil it's a fair guess that they will grow continually worse.

There are four stages of sow thistle infestation each calling for different control methods. The first is the introductory or single plant stage. Odd plants wind borne or sown in the road side dug by some passing car, may not give alarm. This is when a stich in time saves nine thousand and ninety nine. The second stage is digging them with a potato fork preferably. Any one who has dug this thistle knows what a false security an hour or two with a digging fork can create. I have known a farmer who has had to patch 20 feet square holes in his corn field to prevent roots from breaking. They pick the small place out with the care of a pest hunter. They turn the little patch over till it is reduced to the fifth of an inch, yet by maintaining such a patch in a matter of thistles. If you have dug a spot out, do not take it for granted that the thistle are all gone till you have visited there after intervals of a month.

Rapid Progress of Thistle Infestation

The single plant stage passes rapidly and the farmer who is content with little patches here and there all over his fields. Time however, treatment is not a paper. A roll of tar paper costing about $150 contains 400 square feet. By applying it over half width so as to have a double thickness it will cover 200 square feet. Straw or earth should be placed on the patches so as to keep it in place. And it's to be left in place at least a year.

The railways are said to have used thousands of dollars of tar paper for this purpose successfully. It doesn't seem to be a treatment that appeals to farmers judging by the very few I have seen using it. The alternative is to put down a covering of it so that the wind won't lift it. It is enough to discourage the thistle after it is down since the weeds investigate it by walking over it and presto! Its effectiveness is self-gone. Here if it is not here who are contending with sow thistles in this stage could see in a paragraph the alternative. It will unfold itself as the years pass by nothing would prevent a determined effort to check the thistles while they are still of a size that can be dealt with in this way.

Don't let anyone fool you with a story about smother crops. Avoid backward like a plague. Demand a demonstration if your informant tells you sweet clover will choke out thistles. If your informant mentions stubble burners tell him your answer is as effective.

Looking For An Easy Method

The spread of thistles has aroused a great interest in chemical weed killers. This solution of the weed problem has been with us from time immemorial. First it's one chemical, then another. Once in a while the old formulae are dredged up and new ones are concocted. But it doesn't make much difference. For a while crude oil recommended by the Saskatchewan weed branch had a wide vogue. That is no doubt but what it will kill thistles—kill everything it stirs. The soil so completely that nothing will grow on the spot for years. As a roadside treatment it was still is splendid. As a treatment for fields little to be infested in a new place each year it is a washout.

Within the last two years chloride salts have come into use in the United States sodium chloride, in Canada calcium chloride. The calcium salt is safer to handle, and the agents tell us, just as cheap and effective. I visited some of the patches last year killed to the ground, and I was informed by the enthusiastic salesman, the not had extended along the lateral sods preceding any possibility of revival. However, new routes were coming out over the surface of the ground, and if the soil was not too sterile to grow anything I should think routes had enough. On many thistle patches in western Canada this coming summer the salinity treatment will come to its final testing and it will tell the loss of the manufacturers are real food calcium chloride preparations are due to play an important part in arresting the spread of this thistle domain.

The third stage of thistle infestation is reached where patches of an acre or more, are dotted over the farm and where most of the farms in the community are involved. Summerfall is the antidote; no ordinary summerfall but one on which green never shows. The underground stems, as every schoolboy knows, cannot live with out food brought to them by the leaves. If the leaves are destroyed as fast as they are formed the underground stems give up the struggle.

In practice summerfalls are not effective as the fine theory just outlined would indicate. There comes a time in the fall when getting the crop off the land becomes the paramount interest. Follows let go a month or more at the time, and in that interval the sufficient leaf growth on the field to put heart into the nearly exhausted thistle.

There is another aspect of this problem. It costs a lot of money to follow in the way demanded by effective sow thistle control. In wet years the growth is inordinately rapid and there are many days when it is so wet that farmers on heavy soil are very reluctant to work it. The best illustration in the world can only make a partial success of thistle control by following in wet years on certain soils.

The last stage in thistle infestation comes when the whole county is so full of the weed that it becomes a distributor of fresh trouble. Sloughs, woods, and vacant property on the outskirts of towns are harry with the baleful weed and in September the air is white as with snow flakes. When that time comes the farmer has to consider other methods of thistle control besides the occasional summerfall.

MILLING

Lethbridge, Alta. — The most baffling situation I have faced in 27 years in the grain business in western Canada, was how George W. Green manager of the Ellwood Milling and Elevator company summed up his views with respect to the present crisis in wheat.

"Every one has been fooled — the pool and the grain trade generally. We have the wheat but no one buying it, although our stores of wheat are not alarming, due to the light crop. Every one figured prices would be good because of the lighter production. The result has been the opposite. I am not one who is blaming the wheat pool. I do not feel that the pool is to blame and I want to be equally emphatic in denying rumors sometimes heard that the organized grain trade is out to wreck the pool."

POOL REPRESENTATIVE ANSWERS EVANS STATEMENT

Carryover. The "Mr. Evans" reiterated several times his contention that at the beginning of the crop year the four principal exporting countries had available for export 750 million bushels or enough to supply average weekly shipments of 13 1/2 million bushels per week. As the world has taken only 12 1/2 per week to date these countries, he contends, now have available for export 18 1/2 million bushels per week. Mr. Evans arrives at these figures by allowing only 105 million bushels for a carryover on August 1, 1929, in all four of the principal exporting countries. The carry-over which he allows for each of the countries is very much smaller than the lowest carry over any one of them have had in the past seven years. The carry over in the four countries at the end of the 1929 crop year was 514 million bushels or 309 million bushels more than that allowed for this year by Mr. Evans. The carryover from the 1927 crop in the same countries was 592 million bushels or 178 million bushels more than the 414 million bushels which Mr. Evans allows for this year. His calculations are based upon the assumption that the carryover in the United States, Argentina, Canada and Australia will be 25, 50, 50 and 18 million bushels respectively whereas the actual carryover in these countries last year were 245, 120, 101 and 46 million bushels respectively.

"The lowest estimate which has been made this year of the world demand for wheat and flour from exporting countries is Brownhill's figure of 606 million bushels or average weekly shipments of 13 1/2 million. To date the world has taken, according to Brownhill, in the face of many important factors tending to delay demand until the last few months of the year, 12 1/2 million per week, leaving 14 1/2 million per week to be shipped from now on. If the world demand during the remaining five months of the crop year only meets the expectations of Brownhill's estimate the carryover in the four principal exporting countries will have to be reduced 166 million bushels below what it was last year, and any increase in demand over Brownhill's estimate will necessitate a corresponding further reduction in the carryover."

Artificial Conditions Prevail

"It is quite true, Mr. Evans states, that artificial conditions prevailed in Canada last fall and that the Winnipeg grain exchange quotations were above a world price. But the inference that the pool was doing more to effect a rise in the price of wheat for the artificial state of affairs is false as during this period all the pool was doing was offering wheat for export practically every day, at or below Winnipeg prices.
